Endometriosis and infertility have always been regarded as being somehow related. Endometriosis is a condition where there is a growth of cells similar to endometrial cells, those that form the inside of the uterus, but buy dexamethasone in Australia found in a location elsewhere outside of the uterus. These endometrial cells are the same cells that are being shed each month during menstruation. But the cells of endometriosis attach themselves to tissue outside the uterus and are called implants or lesions. The implants or lesions are most commonly found on the ovaries, the Fallopian tubes, outer surfaces of the uterus or intestines, and on the surface lining of the pelvic cavity.

Sometimes, they may also be found in the vagina, cervix, and bladder, although less commonly than other locations in the pelvis. In very rare cases, endometriosis implants or lesions can occur outside the pelvis, on the liver, in old surgery, and even in or around the lung or brain. But these implants or lesions are generally benign, which means, they are not cancerous. Vitamin supplement or supplements are really significant for us because if we do not intake plenty vitamins required for our bodies, the vitamin supplement will substitute for the shortage of the amount of vitamins in our system. Many articles supply answers, but here I do not. Here, I ask the questions. If you want to rack your brains for finding the answers to these life conundrums. But, I warn you. Beware.
